Review: With a sound somewhere between Jimmy Buffet and the Beach Boys, Danny Sandock turns in a splendid job on his fifth CD. He doesn't have the best voice, but it is real and unrefined. The true stars of his music are his amazing melodies and lyrics, and the way he blends it all together to create these amazing summer songs that are perfect for driving down the PCH with the windows (or top) down, or just relaxing by the bonfire at the beach on a cool summer night. Really love the harmonies, and the bodacious harmonica on "Sycamore Canyon Mentality" and "Passin' the Buck," which also shows his Americana influence.

Recommendation: Definitely give this one a listen. It is well worth it.
